Is God Real?

Is something only real if you can touch it, see it, hear it, smell it, taste it or hear it? (The five human senses) If that is true, then let's explore the reality of gravity too.

Don't try this from 15,000 feet. Try this at home, on the floor, where it's safe. Jump. Notice, you came back to the ground.

Even if you don't believe in gravity, you still come back to the ground. Amazing isn't it.

Just because you may choose to stop believing in gravity, that doesn't mean it is not real. You cannot see gravity, taste it, smell it, hear it or touch it.

'Are gravity and God real' could be wrong questions. Gravity and God don't need our permission to be real. The better could be, "Who made you God?" When did God last ask you for your permission to be real?

Whether it is God or gravity, no one else can believe anything for you. If you don't chose to believe in gravity, that will have consequences. If you don't believe in God, that will have consequences too. Perhaps it boils down to the consequences you want to experience.

People jumping out of planes don't debate the reality of gravity. They prepare for it.
